

Playboy Playmate visits Doc's

By Dennis Martin

This year the annual Doc's Moonlight Madness Sale had a special guest. That guest was Playboy Playmate Jordan Monroe. Now you can see why I pulled rank on Harry and covered this one myself. She is the first playmate since the visit by Missouri's Playmate, Jillian Grace. I am sure the Moonlight Madness Sale would have been great as is, but Jordan certainly spiced things up. She was born in Iowa in April of 1986. I graduated from college that year. I must be getting old, but like back then, I still like looking at 20 year old babes. Jordan was selected to be the Playmate of the month in the October 2006 issue. This makes her the first Playmate from the state of Iowa. Yes that is true; I looked it up so that you wouldn't have to.

The rain didn't keep the crowd of people from taking advantage of the sale that day. With getting up to 20% off, and riding season almost here, that was a great savings for everyone. Although winning the $250 gift card would have been even better. It was a good thing I got 14% off playing the "Doc's Deal". This is a version of Deal or No Deal game show. While I was "working" around Jordan, my wife was doing what she does best, shopping. It seemed like this was typical among the couples that were there, the guys waited in line for an autograph then got to wait in line to pay for their gal's items.

Jordan signed our February issue for one of her fans. Apparently his birthday was in February and she signed the calendar. I saw a few copies of the Playboy issue that were autographed as well. Other fans brought in their own pictures to be autographed that they had downloaded from the internet. I asked her if that was a little creepy. She said, "Sometimes it can be, but I'm OK with it."

In case you didn't know, the person that she was with was Joe (Mama) Mason. If you are from the St. Louis area, I am sure you heard him on the radio or seen him on television. He now is the president of Illustrated Man. His role that day was to take care of Jordan. I thought I had a great job!

Favazz of KSHE 95 was supposed to be on vacation, but showed up anyway to broadcast for a few hours. If Katy Kruse would have been there in his place, I am sure the pictures would have been even hotter!

I am not sure how to top this event next year, but I am sure they will try.

The line was long, but it was quick

Favazz talked her into going on the air

Sorry guys, She does not come with this bike, I checked.

I think she wants this bike
